A graduate of two seminaries and holder of a rare Ph.D degree in philosophy, Paul has been called "the most intelligent voice in paranormal research today." Paul is a prize-winning New England journalist and former news editor at the Providence Journal. He is the author of seven books, including the critically acclaimed classic Footsteps in the Attic (2002) and the groundbreaking Turning Home: God, Ghosts and Human Destiny (2006). His mind-wrenching experiences, unique theories and ultimate message of hope have captivated and moved audiences all over America and in Europe. Programs usually last two hours but can be modified for your needs. Suggested ticket price $30-$40, including dinner.

DINNER SHOWS: How They Work

ADVANCE PLANNING AND PUBLICITY: First, you decide which program you'd like and the number of guests you can accommodate for the event. Then, you and New River Press agree on a date, menu and ticket price. Once that's done, it's a good idea to allow at least two months between announcing the event and the event itself. That gives both you and New River Press the chance to publicize it. New River Press can send press releases to local media and announce the event on its many websites, on local news websites, and to our large e-mail list of people who have asked to be kept informed about Paul's events. You can publicize the event with whatever resources you have. New River Press can help by providing you with posters free of charge.

RESERVATIONS: Simply taking reservations is easier and cheaper than printing paper tickets. While New River Press is set up to take credit card, PayPal and e-check reservations online, by phone and by fax, you should be prepared to take reservations in case people contact you directly. IT IS IMPORTANT THAT PEOPLE PAY WHEN THEY MAKE THEIR RESERVATIONS. You also need to decide on a cutoff date for reservations. Unless you prefer to have your own staff do it, New River Press will staff the event and check reserved guests in at the door. If the event sells out, as many of Paul's events do, a second event can be scheduled. If the event does not sell out, you need to decide if tickets can be sold at the door, and how many.

THE EVENT: New River Press provides projection equipment (including a screen, unless you already have one) but we will need a table at which books can be sold and signed by Paul after the event. If your venue is large, you should be prepared to provide a microphone and sound system. You should allow a half hour before the event for Paul and New River Press to set up and at least an hour afterward for take-down and for Paul to sign books.

"THE BUCKS": Unless otherwise agreed in advance, the cost of any meal (and a 20% gratuity) reserved and paid through New River Press will be paid to you by check on the day of the event, after it is over. Likewise, the proceeds of reservations made and paid through you (minus the cost of meals and a 20% gratuity) will be paid to New River Press by check on the day of the event, after it is over.

New River Press provides a written agreement that spells out the above.
